

A climate of change

Three-Week Study Retreat with Eileen Kiera & Jack Duffy

June 4 - 25

During the 2016, 3-week study retreat, we will immerse ourselves in writings from Asia, Europe and North America which express and illuminate the natural configuration of reality. Held by a spacious and disciplined schedule of sitting, walking, working and eating, we will circumambulate the stupa of “a climate of change”. Individually and as a group, we step into a new and closer relationship with that which is before us.

Location: Mountain Lamp Community, Deming, WA

Our Teachers, Eileen Kiera & Jack Duffy

co-founded Mountain Lamp Community. Together they bring together the Diamond Sangha and Plum Village traditions. They are dedicated to the development of LayPractice in the Pacific Northwest.

Jack was given permission to teach in 1992 by Robert Aitken Roshi and was made dharma heir in 1997, one of 5 in North America. He is the teacher for Three Treasures Sangha in Seattle. He brings his roles of spouse, father and psychotherapist, along with years of endangered species work and wilderness wanderings to his teaching.

Eileen received Lamp Transmission as a Dharma teacher in 1990 from the Ven. Thich Nhat Hanh and has spent the past 21 years teaching the Dharma. Over the years she has led retreats in the U.S., Mexico, Europe, Canada and Australia. Her primary focus is in support of lay Dharma practice in the Pacific Northwest.
